WIZARDS SLAM DUNK WITH TOUCHSTONE ENERGY CO-OPS

Bismarck, ND, December 10, 2009 – The Dakota Wizards, NBA Development League affiliate of the NBA's Memphis Grizzlies and Washington Wizards, announced that the team has again joined forces with your local Touchstone Energy Cooperatives to bring the Wizards to area communities around the western region of North Dakota.

Starting in mid December, Wizards players, coaches and staff will travel to area Touchstone Energy Co-Op communities to host free basketball clinics open to the public. These camps will take place at area schools and will culminate into one large evening at the Wizards home game on February 10, 2010, designated as Touchstone Energy Night.

The first camp is scheduled for December 19 and children ages 7-16 are invited onto the floor at the Bismarck Civic Center from 4:00-5:00pm - right before the Wizards take on the rival Sioux Falls SkyForce at 7:00pm. More dates will soon be announced and can be found at www.dakotawizards.com

"This will be a fantastic experience," said Wizards General Manager Terri Benson-Holmstrom. "We are thrilled to bring this exciting venture back to western North Dakota and are looking forward to reaching out to fans in their own communities."

In conjunction with the Wizards Basketball Clinics powered by Touchstone Energy Cooperatives, youth who are in attendance will receive a complimentary ticket to the designated Touchstone Energy Night on February 10, 2010.
