Respected throughout the league for his culture building and championship pedigree, Frank Vogel enters his first season as head coach for the Phoenix Suns in 2023-23 after being named the 21st coach in franchise history on June 6, 2023.

As the Suns conducted their coaching search, Vogel stood above due to his track record of success throughout his time as an NBA head coach, bringing to the Suns the experience of what it takes to capture a title and build a winning culture around talented players. His creativity and ability to build relationships were also significant factors as Vogel has established the skill to connect with and develop players, and to construct a dynamic coaching staff.

Vogel, 49, joins the Suns with 11 years of experience as an NBA head coach with the Indiana Pacers (2011-2016), Orlando Magic (2016-2-18) and Los Angeles Lakers (2019-2022), winning an NBA Championship with the Lakers in 2020 and amassing an overall record of 431-389 as a head coach. In three of his seasons as a head coach, Vogel's team has led the league in defensive rating and he has guided his team to a top-three finish in defensive rating five times; since he entered the NBA head coaching ranks in 2010-11, no head coach has led the league or ranked in the top three in defense more often than Vogel.

Over his 11-year head coaching career, Vogel has guided his teams to three division titles, earning a No. 1 seed for the playoffs in two of those seasons. He has five times been named an NBA Coach of the Month, three times finished in the top five in NBA Coach of the Year voting and twice served as head coach for the NBA All-Star Game.

Vogel has led his teams to the playoffs in seven of his 11 seasons as a head coach, three times progressing to the conference finals including the league title in 2020. Vogel holds a .557 winning percentage in 88 postseason games as a head coach, which ranks 15th in NBA history among those who have coached at least 70 career playoff games.

Vogel spent eight seasons as an NBA assistant coach before becoming a head coach, making stops with the Boston Celtics (2001-2004), Philadelphia 76ers (2004-05) and Pacers (2007-2011) before being named the interim head coach for Indiana midway through the 2010-11 season, guiding the Pacers to their first playoff appearance since 2006. He was officially named the team's head coach that offseason and went on to total an overall record of 250-181 at the helm of the Pacers, remaining the Pacers' franchise leader in NBA wins. Indiana reached the postseason in four of his five seasons there, including back-to-back trips to the Eastern Conference Finals in 2013 and 2014.

After two seasons as Orlando's head coach from 2016-2018 where he oversaw a young and developing roster, Vogel headed west to become the 27th head coach in Lakers franchise history. In his first season in Los Angeles in 2019-20, Vogel helped guide the team with All-Stars LeBron James and Anthony Davis to the West's best regular season record and a 16-5 playoff run on the way to the NBA championship.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Vogel was a student manager for head coach Rick Pitino and contributed to the Wildcats' national title in 1996. He transferred to Kentucky following three years as a starter for Division III Juniata College and got his start in the NBA as the head video coordinator for Pitino with the Boston Celtics before earning his first assistant coaching role with Boston in the 2001-02 season.

A native of Wildwood Crest, N.J., Vogel and his wife Jenifer have two daughters, Alexa and Arianna.
