

NBA DRAFT 2007 NOTES

ESPN COVERAGE OF NBA DRAFT 2007

Once again, the NBA Draft will be televised live by ESPN from the WaMu Theatre at Madison Square Garden. ESPN's coverage begins at 6:00 P.M. CT with a Pre-Draft Show. Live Draft coverage will begin at 6:30 P.M. CT with the Portland Trail Blazers on the clock with the first selection.

NBA DRAFT PROCEDURE

NBA Draft 2007 consists of 60 selections divided evenly into two rounds. The Draft will begin at 6:30 P.M. CT with opening remarks from NBA Commissioner David Stern. With the first pick, the Trail Blazers will be on the clock at approximately 6:30 P.M. CT. The time limit is five minutes between picks in the first round and two minutes between picks in the second round.

PLAYOFFS + LOTTERY = BULLS

For the second year in a row, Chicago is the only playoff team to hold a Lottery pick. The Bulls gained both their 2006 and 2007 Lottery picks via a five-player trade with the New York Knicks on October 4, 2005.

In that transaction, Chicago acquired New York's 2006 first-round pick and chose LaMarcus Aldridge of Texas at No. 2 before trading him to Portland for the No. 4 overall selection in 2006, Tyrus Thomas of Louisiana State. Also via the 2005 trade with the Knicks, the Bulls received the right to switch first round draft picks in 2007 (New York will now chose in Chicago's 23rd position).

For NBA Draft 2007, the Bulls also traded for second round selections No. 49 and No. 51 from Denver in part of a trade on July 20, 2006. In that trade, Chicago sent J.R. Smith (acquired on July 14, 2006 along with P.J. Brown from New Orleans for Tyson Chandler) to Denver in exchange for Howard Easley and two future second round draft picks.

BULLS DRAFT FLASHBACK

This marks the third time in franchise history that the Bulls have held the No. 9 pick and the sixth time with the No. 49 selection. Chicago has never held the No. 51 pick. Here is a look at who the Bulls chose with previous No. 9 and No. 49 selections:

Bulls history with the No. 9 pick:

1978	Reggie Theus	UNLV
1986	Brad Sellers	Ohio State

Bulls history with the No. 49 pick:

1971	Dick Gibbs	Texas-El Paso
1979	Cedrick Hordges	South Carolina
1984	Tim Dillon	Northern Illinois
1994	Kris Bruton	Benedict
1999	Lari Ketner	Massachusetts

Note: Chicago has never selected a player with the #51 pick.

PAXSON'S PICKS

Tonight marks the fifth NBA Draft under the direction of John Paxson since he was named Bulls Executive Vice President of Basketball Operations on April 14, 2003. Through the Draft and free agency, he has rebuilt the Bulls' roster and his teams have now made three straight trips to the playoffs after failing to make the postseason for six straight years. Below is a breakdown of Bulls' Draft picks under John Paxson:

2003

Rnd	Pick	Player	College
1	2	LaMarcus Aldridge*	Texas
1	16	Rodney Carney	Memphis

*traded, along with a future Bulls second-round pick, to Portland for No. 4 pick Tyrus Thomas (LSU) and Viktor Khryapa.

traded, along with New York's 2007 second-round pick and cash, to Philadelphia for No. 13 pick Thabo Sefolosha (Switzerland).

DRAFT NIGHT DEALS

In three of his four drafts thus far (2003, 2004 & 2006), Executive Vice President of Basketball Operations John Paxson has pulled the trigger on a draft night trade. In 2003, Paxson's first draft as Chicago's GM, he chose Florida's Matt Bonner in the second round (45th overall) before dealing him to Toronto for a future second-round choice (38th overall in NBA Draft 2004).

Then in NBA Draft 2004, Paxson drafted Iowa State's Jackson Vroman in the second round (31st overall) and immediately sent him to Phoenix for Duke product Luol Deng (7th overall by Phoenix) and a future conditional first round selection (21st overall in NBA Draft 2005: Nate Robinson).

Last year, Paxson chose Texas' LaMarcus Aldridge second overall and used him to acquire the fourth overall pick Tyrus Thomas of LSU and two-year veteran Viktor Khryapa from Portland. Also in the 2006 Draft, Paxson brought Switzerland native Thabo Sefolosha (13th overall pick) to Chicago for the rights to draftee Rodney Carney (16th overall selection) of Memphis and cash.

YEAR	NO. 9 PICK	NBA TEAM

NBA DRAFT 2007 NOTES

-- Eighty-four players applied for early entry in NBA Draft 2007, including 59 players from U.S. colleges and institutions and 25 international players. Those who have applied for early entry have the right to withdraw their names from consideration by notifying the NBA of their decision in writing 10 days prior to the draft. Of the 94 players who applied for early entry in 2006, 47 withdrew.

-- Testing the draft waters is becoming a popular trend, with many high profile college juniors not automatically slated for the first round taking advantage of the rule that allows them to declare for the draft without hiring an agent, work out for teams and, perhaps, secure an invite to the NBA Pre-Draft Camp in Orlando. In 2006, Nevada's Nick Fazekas, Rice's Morris Almond and Pittsburgh's Aaron Gray went through the process and decided to return to school for another season. South Carolina's Renaldo Balkman (20th), P.J. Tucker of Texas (35th), Louisiana Tech's Paul Millsap (47th), Miami's Guillermo Diaz (52nd), George Washington's J.R. Pinnock (58th) and Iowa State's Will Blalock (60th) rolled the dice and were drafted. Iowa State's Curtis Stinson, San Diego State's Marcus Slaughter and Missouri's Thomas Gardner went undrafted.

-- Of the 60 players that were drafted in 2006, 15 spent time in D-League this past season, the second in which NBA teams were allowed to assign players. They ranged from the ninth overall pick (Patrick O'Bryant) to the 60th pick (Will Blalock). Thirty players from the past two drafts were assigned to D-League affiliates. In all, 24 players were assigned to D-League teams from NBA rosters last season.

-- There were eight college seniors selected in the first round of the 2006 draft. Of the 30 players selected in the first round, 15 had at least three years of experience on the collegiate level. Twenty-two went to college for at least two years.

-- NBA teams continue to find quality players in the second round of the NBA Draft. Of the 30 players chosen in the second round of the 2006 draft, 19 played in the NBA this past season. Nine other players have their rights held by NBA teams. Only two players – Denham Brown and J.R. Pinnock – were cut by their respective teams in training camp. Minnesota's Craig Smith (36th) and Utah's Paul Millsap (47th) each earned All-Rookie Second Team honors.

-- In the 2006 draft, the Washington Wizards (Oleksiy Pecherov, 18th) and Portland Trail Blazers (Joel Freeland, 30th) spent first round picks on international players, who did not play in the NBA this past season. In 2005, the San Antonio Spurs chose Ian Manhinmi with the 28th overall selection. This trend figures to continue this year, with several young international players hoping to get into the first round, despite being several years away from contributing in the NBA.

-- Kevin Durant (Texas) and Greg Oden (Ohio State) became the first freshmen selected to the AP All-America First Team since 1990. Since freshmen became eligible to play in 1972, only two other freshmen have received these honors -- Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma in 1983 and Chris Jackson of LSU in 1990. Oden is the first Ohio State All-America selection in college basketball since Jim Jackson in 1992. Alando Tucker and Acie Law were Wisconsin's and Texas', respectively, first-ever AP All-America First Team selections. Aaron Afflalo became the first UCLA hoopster since Ed O'Bannon in 1995 to garner AP All-America First Team honors.

-- The last team to win back-to-back NCAA titles before the Florida Gators in 2006 and 2007 was the Duke Blue Devils in 1991 and 1992. In the 1992 NBA Draft, the Blue Devils had two players drafted – Christian Laettner (Minnesota, 3rd) and Brian Davis (Phoenix, 48th). Florida's Al Horford, Corey Brewer and Joakim Noah figure to be selected in the first round of the 2007 draft. Taurean Green, should he keep his name in the draft, figures to be selected in the second round.

-- As a result of a rule change this year, NBA teams were not permitted to conduct individual workouts with draft-eligible players prior to June 5. Workouts scheduled and sanctioned by the NBA were conducted at the NBA Pre-Draft Camp in Orlando, and open to all teams.

-- Portsmouth Still Matters: Last year, 10 players parlayed their visit to the Portsmouth Invitational Tournament into a spot in the NBA, including: David Noel (North Carolina) of Milwaukee, Chris Quinn (Notre Dame) and Robert Hite (Miami) of Miami, Jose Juan Barea (Northeastern) of Dallas, Steve Novak (Marquette) of Houston, Tarence Kinsey (South Carolina) of Memphis, Bobby Jones (Washington) of Philadelphia, Justin Williams (Wyoming) of Sacramento, Solomon Jones (South Florida) of Atlanta and Mike Hall (George Washington) of Washington.

-- Last year, the Toronto Raptors won the lottery and chose Italy's Andrea Bargnani with the top pick, but it was Portland's Brandon Roy, the sixth overall selection, who garnered NBA Rookie of the Year honors. The last top overall pick to win Rookie of the Year was LeBron James in 2003-04. Since 1996, only four players – Allen Iverson, Tim Duncan, Elton Brand (shared honors with Steve Francis) and James – have gone on to win Rookie of the Year.

-- As the draft continues to get deeper each year, more "first-round talents" get pushed into the second round. While the second round affords no guarantees, teams have taken to the idea of giving a three-year contract, at a reasonable price, to players they feel may have slipped through the cracks and have great potential. A three-year deal allows the team to secure the player's "Bird rights," meaning they can exceed the salary cap in order to re-sign him. In 2001, the Golden State Warriors nabbed Gilbert Arenas in the second round, but only signed him to a two-year deal, and were unable to match the offer sheet he signed with Washington in 2003.

-- The Philadelphia 76ers own the 21st and 30th overall picks in addition to a lottery pick. The Charlotte Bobcats (lottery pick and No. 22) have two picks in the first round, as do the Detroit Pistons (15 and 27). Phoenix also has two first-round picks (24 and 29), but also could add a third selection on June 28. If the Atlanta Hawks' pick doesn't come in the top three, it gets sent to Phoenix as part of the Joe Johnson trade in 2005. The Chicago Bulls have the right to swap first-round positions with the Knicks as one condition of the Eddy Curry trade, a right they are likely to exercise this year. Chicago is slated to pick 23rd, while the Knicks' position will be determined by the NBA Draft Lottery.

-- In the early days, the draft used to last as long as teams desired, with the proceedings ending only when every team tired of calling out names. As of 1973, the draft lasted an amazing 20 rounds (at least it did for the fledgling Buffalo Braves, who needed all the players they could get after winning only 21 games the season before). In 1974, the league adopted a 10-round NBA Draft, a format that stayed in place until 1985, when it was scaled back to seven rounds. After three years of seven-round drafts, the draft was shaved to three rounds in 1988 and to its current length of two rounds in 1989.

-- Eight players from this year's National Championship game stand a good chance of being drafted. Florida's Al Horford, Corey Brewer, Joakim Noah and Taurean Green, and Ohio State's Greg Oden, Mike Conley Jr. Daequan Cook and Ron Lewis could all hear their names called on June 28. In recent years, the National Championship game has been heavily populated with future draft picks the same year. In 2005, four players from North Carolina (Marvin Williams, Raymond Felton, Sean May and Rashad McCants) went in the lottery, while Illinois' Deron Williams and Luther Head each went in the first round. In 2003, Carmelo Anthony of Syracuse and Kirk Hinrich and Nick Collison of Kansas were all drafted in the lottery. In 2002, Maryland's Chris Wilcox, Juan Dixon and Lonny Baxter joined Indiana's Jared Jeffries as draft picks.
