2005-06 Season Series Stat and Notes
After losing the last two meetings in the 2004-05 season series, Mavs won first three last season but dropped the final game on 4/19/06
Dallas won the first meeting by 20 on 1/20/06, won the next two games by only two points each before dropping the last matchup by 14
Mavs averaged just 85.0 points on 41.9% FGs while Clippers averaged 82.5 points on 43.5% FGs…Dallas hit just 11-of-40 (27.5%) 3-pointers
Dallas had just 58 assists to 57 turnovers in the four games…Dirk Nowitzki averaged just 21.0 points on 37.9% shooting but had 11.7 rpg
Elton Brand appeared in three of the games and averaged just 17.3 points on 40.0% FGs…he did have 11 blocks in those three games
WHAT HAVE YOU DONE FOR ME LATELY: For those of you with short attentions spans, here’s more recent notes and trends as well as observations from the Mavericks last game:

- Dallas has opened the season with two losses…the last time the Mavericks started a season 0-2 was in 1993-94 (0-3) when the team went 13-69…in 2002-03. Dallas did not lose its second game until game #19 of the season.
- Dirk Nowitzki is shooting 50.0% from the floor but is averaging just 22.5 points down from 26.6 ppg in 2005-06…he has just 5 free throw attempts this season…last season, Nowitzki averaged 7.4 FTA per game.
- Jason Terry scored just one point on 0-of-5 shooting from the floor at Houston on 11/4…it marked his lowest point total since going scoreless on 2/24/05 vs. Sacramento…Terry scored fewer than 10 points 10 times last season (Mavs 6-4 mark)…three of those times came in the first seven games of the season…Terry scored 10+ points in 41 of the final 43 games last season.
- Jason Terry has not hit a 3-pointer this season (0-3 3FGs)…in 2005-06, he hit 171 3-pointers, the second-most by a Maverick in a single season…dating back to last season, Terry has not hit a single 3-pointer in seven of the last 18 regular season games after setting a franchise-high by having at least one 3-pointer in 47 consecutive games from 12/10/05-3/28/06…this is the first time Terry has gone consecutive games without a single 3-pointer since 11/17/11/19/05.
- Josh Howard is second on the team in scoring with 18.0 points per game (up from 15.6 ppg in 2005-06) but is averaging just 3.5 rebounds per game after averaging 6.3 last season.
- Gana Diop is averaging 4.5 offensive boards per game this season and had a career-high tying 6 vs. San Antonio on 11/2…he averaged 2.9 offensive rebounds per game in the preseason after averaging 1.8 orpg in 2005-06.
- Anthony Johnson hit all three of his 3-pointers in the first half at Houston on 11/4 and finished with 11 points off the bench…the three 3-pointers tied his career high (13 times now)…Johnson hit a career-high 51 3-pointers for Indiana last season and had 2+ 17 times and 3+ four times.
- Erick Dampier grabbed a game-high 9 rebounds in just 23 minutes at Houston on 11/4…5 of those boards were on the offensive end…last season, Dallas was 29-6 in games in which Dampier had 4+ offensive rebounds…he ranked tied for third in the league in offensive boards (3.3 orpg).
- Erick Dampier has committed 4+ turnovers in each of the two games this season…he had 4+ turnovers in three of the first 10 games last season but did not commit more than three in any of the final 72 games.
- Devin Harris is averaging just 3.0 points (2-of-10 FGs) in 13.5 minutes per game so far this season…he did score fewer than 10 points in eight of the 14 games last November but scored in double-figures in 13 of the 16 games in December…Harris has just two free throw attempts this season…he averaged 4.2 FTA per game in 2005-06.
- Greg Buckner missed his first eight shots of the season and is shooting just 1-of-10 from the floor…although he averaged a career-high 6.7 points last season for Denver, he shot 43.4% from the floor, down from a career-best 52.8% in 2004-05 and a career mark of 46.5% entering this season.
- Dallas had just 13 assists to 22 turnovers on 11/4 at Houston and has just 28 assists to 35 turnovers for the season…last season, the Mavericks were 29-6 in games in which Dampier had 4+ offensive rebounds…he ranked tied for third in the league in offensive boards (3.3 orpg).
- Dallas had just 13 assists to 22 turnovers on 11/4 at Houston and has just 28 assists to 35 turnovers for the season…last season, the Mavericks were 10-6 when having more turnovers than assists and 3-2 when they committed 20+ turnovers…Dallas averaged a franchise-low 18.0 assists per game last season and ranked second to last in the NBA in that department.
- The Mavericks lost by 31 points at Houston on 11/4…the most points Dallas lost by last season was 22 and they only suffered a total of two losses by 20+ points…the last time the Mavericks lost by 30+ points was 11/26/03 (121-90 at Phoenix) and they lost the following game by 10-points.
- Dallas had just one steal at Houston on 11/4…the Mavericks never had fewer than two steals all of last season.
- The Mavericks scored just 76 points on 11/4 at Houston…Dallas scored fewer than 80 points three times last season (1-2 mark)…including the preseason, the Mavericks have not scored more than 93 points in a single game.
- Dallas has had fewer free throw attempts than its opponent had free throws made in both games this season…the Mavericks have just 35 FTA (24 FTM) this season while their opponent has 50 FTM (67 FTA)…last season, Dallas was 7-10 in games in which its opponent made more free throws than it attempted.
- Yao Ming scored 36 points vs. Dallas on 11/4…the Mavericks were 7-9 when their opponent had a 30-point scorer last season…Yao had 24 points at the half…last season, Dallas allowed an opposing player to score 20+ points in a half 11 times (four times in the first half).
- Houston scored 107 points on 53.6% shooting on 11/4 vs. Dallas…last season, the Mavericks were 4-8 when allowing their opponent to shoot 50.0% or better from the floor and 7-15 when giving up 100+ points.
- The Rockets shot 50.0% (8-16 3FGs) from 3-point range on 11/4 vs. Dallas…the Mavericks were 14-13 in games in which their opponent shot 40.0% or better from behind-the-arc last season.
- Dallas shot a lower percentage than its opponent in both games this season and has not shot above 43.2%…last season, the Mavericks were 15-10 when shooting below 44.0% from the floor and 12-18 when shooting a lower percentage than their opponent.
- Dirk Nowitzki hit his only 3-point attempt on 11/4 at Houston…that gave him 871 3-pointers made for his career which is the most by a Maverick in franchise history.
- Dallas had just 6 fastbreak points at Houston on 11/4 after recording just 4 vs. San Antonio on 11/2…the Mavericks had fewer than 10 fastbreak points 21 times last season (14-7 mark).
- The Mavericks have not given up more than 7 offensive rebounds in either of their games this season…Dallas held its opponent to an average of 7.6 offensive rebounds per game in the preseason compared to 11.4 orpg in 2005-06…the Mavericks held their opponent below 10 offensive boards 17 times over the final 37 games of 2005-06 (including 5 of the last 10) after doing so just 12 times the first 45 games.
- Dallas has just nine 3-pointers made this season (32.1%) and has not hit more than five in a single game…the Mavericks had 7+ 3-pointers just twice over the final 30 games of 2005-06.
- Houston had an assist on 70.3% of its field goals made vs. Dallas on 11/4 and had 26 assists…the Mavericks gave up 25+ assists just seven times last season (3-4 mark).
- The Mavericks never held a lead on 11/4 at Houston…that happened three times last season.
- Including the preseason, Dallas is now 0-6 against Western Conference opponents.
IT WAS THE BEST OF TIMES, IT WAS THE WORST OF TIMES: Unfortunately, the Mavericks fell two wins shy of winning the franchise’s first NBA Championship but don’t forget some of the great moments last season:
- Dallas won a franchise-high tying 60 games in the regular season.
- The Mavericks advanced to the NBA Finals for the first time in franchise history.
- In just his first full season as head coach, Avery Johnson was named NBA Coach of the Year.
- The Mavericks coaching staff represented the Western Conference at the 2006 All-Star Game and Dirk Nowitzki won the 3-point contest.
- Dirk Nowitzki was named First Team All-NBA for the second straight season and finished third in MVP voting for the second consecutive year.
- Once again, Dallas sold out all 41 regular season home games, extending the streak to 194 consecutive regular season sellouts.

NOT SO FAST MY FRIEND: Recent history says that the Mavericks won’t be able to rest on their laurels if they hope to make the NBA Finals again this season. Since the start of the 1989-90 season, only two teams have lost the Finals and made it back the following season (Utah in 1997-98 and New Jersey in 2002-03). The last time a team won the championship the season after losing in the Finals was Detroit in 1988-89. In NBA history, the team who lost the Finals has gone on to win the championship nine times the following season and at least made it to the Finals an additional 11 times.

BEEN THERE, DONE THAT: Heading into the 2006 NBA Finals, Dallas had just two players (Darrell Armstrong and Keith Van Horn) who were part of teams that made the Finals. Now, in addition to the returning Mavericks, Dallas added three players this past offseason who have Finals experience: Austin Croshere (2000 Finals with Indiana), Devean George (2000, 2001 and 2002 with the L.A. Lakers) and Anthony Johnson (2002 with New Jersey). In addition, George has won three championships, which is three more than the rest of the Mavericks team combined. The last time Dallas had a player on its roster who was part of a championship team was in 2003-04 (Scott Williams).

HITTING THE GROUND RUNNING: Dallas will play 12 of their final 18 games of the season on the road. The Mavericks won nine of their first 11 games last season and 8 of their first 10 in 2004-05. The best start in Mavericks franchise history came in 2002-03, when Dallas won its first 14 games. Seven of the Mavericks first 12 games are on the road and Dallas does not have any consecutive home games during that stretch. Eight of the first 12 games come against teams that made the playoffs last season. Following those 12 games, Dallas will play 8 of 11 at home from 11/25-12/15 and only six of those 11 games are against teams that were in the 2006 playoffs.

VOTE EARLY, VOTE OFTEN: Last season, Dirk Nowitzki was the only Maverick to make the All-Star team despite the fact Dallas went on to win 60 games. Since the lockout shortened season in 1998-99, a total of nine teams have won 60+ games and Dallas was the only second to have fewer than two players selected for the All-Star game. In 2002-03, San Antonio won 60 games but Tim Duncan was the Spurs only representative in the All-Star game. However, after Duncan, the Spurs second-leading scorer was Tony Parker with just 15.5 points per game. Jason Terry averaged 17.1 ppg for Dallas last season and is still looking for his first All-Star appearance. Josh Howard is looking to make his first All-Star game as well.

JUST THE TWO OF US: The Mavericks and Spurs are the only two teams to have won 50+ games in each of the past six seasons. On 3/14/06 vs. Cleveland, Dallas secured its eighth 50-win season in team history. In the decade of the ’90’s, the Mavericks LOST 50+ games in seven of the 10 seasons. The Mavericks and Spurs are the only two teams to have won 50+ games in each of the past six seasons. On 3/14/06 vs. Cleveland, Dallas secured its eighth 50-win season in team history. In the decade of the ’90’s, the Mavericks LOST 50+ games in seven of the 10 seasons.

FEELING RIGHT AT HOME: After going 29-12 at home in 2004-05, Dallas improved to 34-7 at American Airlines Center in 2005-06. Head Coach Avery Johnson owns a career coaching mark of 42-8 at home. The Mavericks won 27 of their final 31 home games, including 16 straight from 1/3-3/3/06, which is the longest streak in team history.

20,000 MANIAACS: Dallas had a crowd of 20,000+ for 29 of its 41 home games this past season. The listed capacity for American Airlines Center is 19,200 but that can be surpassed because of attendance in the suites. The Mavericks have sold out 195 consecutive home games (157-38 record). The streak started on 12/15/02. Dallas has sold out an additional 35 playoff and 12 preseason games during that same stretch. Since moving into American Airlines Center (2001-02 season), the Mavericks have posted a home mark of 163-43 (.791). Dallas has sold out all 41 games in each of the past four seasons.

KINGS OF THE ROAD: The Mavericks couldn’t top their franchise-best road mark of 29-12 set in 2004-05, but they turned in a very respectable 26-15 record in 2005-06. That was the fourth best road mark in team history. The Mavericks won six straight on the road from 1/18-2/1, which tied for the fourth longest road winning streak in franchise history.

THE NATURAL: Head Coach Avery Johnson won 66 of his first 82 games, which was four more wins than the previous best start by a first-time coach in league history. Johnson was also the fastest coach to reach 50 career wins. He was named Western Conference Coach of the Month for January, marking the third time in his first four full months coaching that he received the award. Johnson was named Western Conference Coach of the Month last April and again in November, becoming the first coach in the history of the NBA to win Coach of the Month honors in his first two full months on the job.

IN GOOD HANDS: Dallas was the only team whose top three scorers (Dirk Nowitzki, Jason Terry and Josh Howard) all averaged fewer than 2.0 turnovers per game. Of the league's top 15 scorers, Nowitzki was the only player to average fewer than 2.0 tpg. The Mavericks were also one of just two teams (Boston) whose top three scorers all shot at least 47.0% from the floor.

LOTTA TALENT: Of the 15 players currently on the roster, 10 were former first round draft picks (Maurice Ager, Austin Croshere, Erick Dampier, Gana Diop, Devean George, Devin Harris, Josh Howard, Dirk Nowitzki, Jerry Stackhouse and Jason Terry). Six of those 10 were top-10 picks (Dampier, Diop, Harris, Nowitzki, Stackhouse and Terry). Stackhouse holds the honor of being the highest drafted Maverick (third overall by Philadelphia in 1995). Two Mavericks were second-round picks (Greg Buckner by Dallas in 1998 and Anthony Johnson). Three Mavericks were undrafted (Jose Juan Barea, DJ Mbenga and Pops Mensah-Bonsu).

PLAYER NOTES

D-NO DOES IT: Not too many people thought that Dirk Nowitzki could top his MVP caliber performance in 2004-05, but he did just that last season, setting several career-highs in the process. Nowitzki averaged a career-best 26.6 points per game while also posting career-highs in ALL THREE shooting categories (FG%, 3PT% and FT%). In fact, Nowitzki became just the third player (Rick Barry and Larry Bird) in league history to average at least 26.0 points for a season while shooting 90.0% or better from the foul line. For the second straight season, he finished third in MVP voting and was named First Team All-NBA. Nowitzki is one of four players (Kobe Bryant, Tim Duncan and Shaquille O'Neal) to be named to an All-NBA Team in each of the past six seasons.

GOOD THINGS COME TO THOSE WHO WAIT: Less than two years ago, some folks were ready to run Jason Terry out of town, as the newly acquired guard was struggling to find his way with the Mavericks. Fast forward to this past summer, when Maverick fans were ready to riot if the free-agent guard wasn't brought back to Dallas. Terry found his comfort zone with the Mavericks in 2005-06, averaging 17.1 points per game, up from 12.4 ppg in 2004-05. He drilled 171 3-pointers in 2005-06, the second most ever by a Maverick in a single season. Terry has tallied 100+ 3-pointers and 100+ steals in each of the past six seasons. In his first two seasons with the Mavericks, Terry shot a combined 48.2% from the floor after not shooting above 43.6% in any of his first five NBA seasons. He has also never shot below 80.0% from the line during his seven-year career. Here's the Top 5 in 3PTM in the NBA since the start of 2000-01:

NO MORE SURPRISES: Josh Howard won't be able to catch teams off-guard anymore. Howard solidified himself as one of the league's rising stars in 2005-06 and is looking to build upon that success this season. He increased his scoring from 12.6 ppg in 2004-05 to 15.6 ppg this past season. The Mavericks finished the regular season an amazing 19-0 in games in which Howard scored 20 or more points and 15-0 when he recorded a double-double. Howard shot a team-high 42.9% from 3-point range in 2005-06 after shooting just 29.8% his first two seasons. In the playoffs, he knocked down 24 3-pointers in 23 games after hitting just 27 in 59 regular season games played. Opponents shot 40.4% from 3-point range in games he missed last season, compared to 34.3% in games that he played.

STACK'S HOUSE OF PAIN: After missing the first 26 games of the 2005-06 season with a sore right knee, Jerry Stackhouse is more than anxious to hit the ground running this season. The Mavericks were a very respectable 19-7 in those first 26 games without Stackhouse, but posted a 41-14 mark in games that he played. In 27 total games without Stackhouse, the Mavericks outscored opponents 99.0 ppg to 95.6. With him in the lineup, Dallas averaged 97.2 ppg to 91.9 for its opponents. In 2005-06, Stackhouse single-handedly outscored the opponents bench seven times during the regular season and an amazing nine times in the playoffs. Stockhouse shot a career-high 88.2% from the line in 2005-06 (seventh in the NBA) and has not shot below 80.0% from the line since the start of the 1998-99 season.

LATE BLOOMER: After being labeled a bust following four lackluster seasons with Cleveland, Gana Diop, the eighth overall pick in the 2001 NBA Draft, finally began to show his value out on the court. Diop appeared in all but one game for Dallas, starting the final 45 games he played in. He averaged 18.6 minutes per game last season after averaging just 10.8 mpg while with the Cavaliers. Diop shot 48.7% from the floor in 2005-06 after shooting a combined 35.8% his first four seasons. Diop ranked 14th in the NBA in blocks (1.80 bpg) and fourth in blocks per 48 minutes played (4.54). In 2005-06, he had 44 steals to just 36 turnovers.

IRON ERICK: Last season, Erick Dampier was the only Maverick to appear in all 82 games. Despite averaging just 23.6 minutes per game, he ranked tied for third in the NBA in offensive rebounding (3.3 orpg), tied for 21st in overall rebounding (7.8 rpg) and 27th in blocks (1.29 bpg). Dampier also ranked third in the NBA in rebounds per 48 minutes played (16.0). Over the past three seasons, when Dampier scores in double-digits, the Mavericks are 34-7. Dallas was 7-0 when he recorded a double-double in 2005-06. Over the past four seasons (2002-03 through 2005-06), Dampier has shot 52.0% from the floor compared to 41.8% his first six seasons.
ANOTHER AJ: In addition to head coach and former point guard Avery Johnson, the Mavericks now have a current point guard named Anthony Johnson. In the 2006 playoffs, Johnson scored 40 points for Indiana in Game 6 of its first round matchup vs. New Jersey. Prior to that game, Johnson’s career-high (regular season or playoffs) was 27 points set against Charlotte back in January. Johnson averaged 20.0 points, 5.2 assists and 5.0 rebounds in that first round series vs. New Jersey compared to regular season career averages of 5.7 points, 2.8 assists and 1.7 rebounds heading into this season. Johnson also averaged 9.2 points last season and knocked down a career-best 51 3-pointers. He scored 22+ points four times in 2005-06 after reaching that total just once in his career entering the season.

YES, AUSTIN’S IN TEXAS: Austin Croshere joins the Mavericks after having spent all nine of his NBA seasons with the Indiana Pacers. Injuries limited Croshere to just 50 games played last season, but he still made a career-high 26 starts. He also shot a career-best 46.3% from the floor after shooting a combined 40.5% his first eight seasons. Croshere also averaged 5.3 rebounds last season, which is the second-highest average of his career (6.4 rpg in 1999-00). Outside of his rookie season, Croshere has never shot below 80.0% from the line and his career percentage of 86.2% heading into this season would rank him 11th among NBA all-time leaders if he qualified. He has made all but 53 of a possible 462 free throws (88.5%) over the past four seasons (2006-07).

GREAT EXPECTATIONS: Fantasy basketball players are keeping their eyes on third-year guard Devin Harris who showed great improvement in 2005-06 after an up-and-down rookie campaign. Harris averaged 9.9 points (46.9% FGs), 3.2 assists and 2.2 rebounds in 2005-06 after averaging 5.7 points (42.9% FGs), 2.2 assists and 1.3 rebounds as a rookie. On 11/5/05 vs. San Antonio, Harris scored 20 points in the fourth quarter after not having scored more than 19 points in a game as a rookie. Harris attempted just 21 3-pointers to 236 free throws last season after attempting 131 3-pointers to 103 free throws as a rookie. Here’s a look at some current players who showed improvement in their second season and went on to enjoy breakout success as third-year players:

BUCK’S BACK: In what has become a bit of a Mavericks tradition, another former player is making his return. Greg Buckner played his first three seasons with the Mavericks from 1999-00 through 2001-02. Last season for Denver, he averaged a career-high 6.7 points, 2.9 rebounds, 1.7 assists and a career-high 1.19 steals. Buckner hit 86 3-pointers in 2005-06 after having just 93 in his first six seasons combined. Over the final 45 games of the season, he averaged 7.9 points and 1.5 3-pointers per game. He was also Denver’s third leading scorer in the 2006 playoffs with 12.6 points per game. During a 17-game stretch from 1/2-2/6/06, he committed a total of 5 turnovers in 395 minutes of play. For his career, Buckner has 358 steals to 288 turnovers (1.24 ratio).

BY GEORGE! We’ve got him: Unfortunately, the Mavericks came two wins shy of securing championship rings, but they did sign a player who has three of his own. Devean George joins Dallas after spending seven seasons with the L.A. Lakers. He was just the seventh player in NBA history to win a championship in each of his first three seasons and was also the first player from a Division III university to play in the Finals. After injuries limited him to just 15 games in 2004-05, George appeared in 71 games for the Lakers last season, averaging 6.3 points and 3.9 rebounds. Had he qualified, George would have ranked sixth in the league in steal-to-turnover ratio (1.22). For his career, he has nearly as many steals (307) as turnovers (340). The 2005-06 season marked the third time George had experienced a 50 3-pointers in his career.

MBAKE ROOM FOR MBENGA: After two seasons of “learning the ropes,” DJ Mbenga is looking to become a steady performer for Dallas in 2006-07. Mbenga appeared in 43 games last season, averaging 1.7 points and 1.3 rebounds in 5.5 minutes per game. He also shot 53.3% from the floor. Of all players who appeared in at least one game in 2005-06, Mbenga ranked third in the NBA in blocks per 48 minutes played (1.24 ratio). The Mavericks are designing a new point guard position around Mbenga’s athletic ability and defensive prowess. Mbenga, who averaged 1.7 blocks per game in 2005-06, is expected to start at the point guard position and bring a new dimension to the Mavericks’ offense.

GOTTA GO WITH MOE: To say that the Mavericks were pleased that Maurice Ager fell to them with the 28th pick in the 2006 NBA Draft would be an understatement. Ager played all four seasons for Tom Izzo at Michigan State. As a senior, he averaged 19.3 points, 4.1 rebounds and 2.5 assists and was named Big Ten Second Team by the media and Third Team by the coaches. This past summer, Ager participated for the Golden State Warriors in the Toshiba Vegas Summer League and the Rocky Mountain Reviue. In seven total games, he averaged 16.9 points.

CAN A ROOK BE CALLED “POPS?”: Joining Maurice Ager in rookie bag carrying duties will be former George Washington star Pops Mensah-Bonsu, who went undrafted back in June. Pops was an Atlantic 10 All Conference First Team selection last season and a second team pick in 2004-05. He ranks second on George Washington’s career blocked shots list with 141. Pops shot 58.4% from the floor during his collegiate career. He played for Dallas in the Toshiba Vegas Summer League and the Rocky Mountain Reviue. In 10 total games, Pops averaged 8.5 points (50.0% FGs), 5.3 rebounds and 1.30 blocks. He attempted nearly as many free throws (53) as he did field goals (56).

CATCH HIM IF YOU CAN: Generously listed at 6-0, Jose Barea won’t be posting anyone up, but he can certainly make them work to keep pace with him on the open court. Barea went undrafted back in June after spending four seasons at Northeastern. He was a finalist for the Bob Cousy award, given to the nation’s best point guard, as both a junior and a senior. Barea left Northeastern, trailing only Reggie Lewis on the school’s all-time scoring list. As a senior, he averaged 21.0 points and 8.4 assists and was named Honorable Mention All-America by The Associated Press. This past summer, he played for Golden State in the Toshiba Vegas Summer League, averaging 6.8 points, 2.8 assists, 1.8 rebounds and 2.00 steals before joining Dallas for the Rocky Mountain Reviue in which he averaged 12.0 points, 6.7 assists and 1.7 rebounds.

COACHES BIO

AVERY JOHNSON: Regular Season Coaching Record: 76-25 (.752); Playoff Coaching Record: 20-16 (.556)

On March 19, 2005, Don Nelson resigned as head coach of the Mavericks and Avery Johnson was named the eighth coach in the history of the franchise. Johnson finished the season with a 16-2 mark and was named Western Conference Coach of the Month for April after guiding the Mavericks to their highest win total for that month in team history (10-1 mark).

He was also named Western Conference Coach of the Month in November of 2005, becoming the first coach in league history to win the award in his first two full months of coaching. Johnson picked up the award again in January 2006 and was later named NBA Coach of the Year for 2005-06.

Johnson won 66 of his first 82 games, which was four more wins than any other coach in league history had through 82 games. He was also the fastest coach to reach the 50-win mark (62 games) and coached the Western Conference in the 2006 All-Star game. Last season, Johnson guided Dallas to a franchise-high tying 60 wins and its first appearance in the NBA Finals.

Johnson began the 2004-05 season as an assistant coach for Dallas after retiring as a player on October 28, 2004. In 16 NBA seasons, he averaged 8.4 points, 5.5 assists, 1.7 rebounds and 25.3 minutes played in 1,054 career games. Johnson won an NBA Championship with San Antonio in 1999.
