GAME HIGHLIGHTS:

- Five Thunder players scored in double-figures as Oklahoma City improved to 5-1 in those games played after a loss this season by defeating the Jazz at the Energy Solutions Arena for a third consecutive time.
- The Thunder closed the third quarter on an 18-7 run to take a 74-65 lead into the fourth quarter. Utah trimmed the Oklahoma City lead to no less than nine points in the final six minutes of regulation. OKC improved to 18-2 this season when leading after three quarters of play.
- Kendrick Perkins posted his first double-double of the season (10 points and 10 rebounds) as the Thunder outrebounded the Jazz by a 46-32 margin (The 32 Jazz rebounds represents an opponent season-low for OKC). The Thunder is now a perfect 6-0 this season when outrebounding the opposition by 10 or more.
- With a game-high 28 points on 10-of-20 shooting, Russell Westbrook has scored at least 28 points in his last four outings.
- After limiting the Jazz to 87 points, the Thunder remains a perfect 7-0 when holding the opposition to less than 90 points.
- With the victory, OKC concluded their five-game road trip with a record of 3-2. Additionally, the Thunder assured themselves of the best record in the NBA for all games played through February 15th. As a result, Thunder Head Coach Scott Brooks and his staff will coach the Western Conference All-Star game in Orlando on February 26th.

GAME HIGHLIGHTS:

- The Sacramento Kings forced the Thunder into 23 turnovers and overcame an eight point fourth quarter deficit to win in their lone appearance on national television (TNT) this season. The Thunder lost despite setting an all-time franchise record with 17 blocked shots.
- The Thunder pulled-ahead 95-87 at the 5:56 mark of the fourth quarter after a Daequan Cook 3-point field goal, but the Kings closed the game on a 19-6 run to secure the victory. Marcus Thornton led the Kings with 10 fourth quarter points on 4-of-6 shooting in the period.
- For the second time this season, Serge Ibaka matched an all-time franchise record with 10 blocked shots. Ibaka becomes just the second player with multiple games of 10+ blocks over the last 14 season (Marcus Camby recorded two such games in 2007-08). OKC dropped a game for the first time this season when Ibaka recorded three or more blocks (11-0 previously).
- Led by DeMarcus Cousins, the Kings outrebounded the Thunder 46-40 and outscored Oklahoma City in the paint by a 60-34 margin.
- On the day in which he was named a reserve for the Western Conference All-Star team, Russell Westbrook scored a game-high 33 points (sixth 30-point effort of the season) on 15-of-26 shooting. Westbrook's 15 made field goals represents a career-high.

GAME HIGHLIGHTS:

- For the second consecutive night, Oklahoma City overcame a late fourth quarter deficit on the road to claim victory despite allowing a season-high 116 points. After shooting 52.4% from the field (44-84 FGs), the Thunder remain a perfect 7-0 this season when shooting 50.0% or better. Oklahoma City prevailed despite playing for the fourth time in five days and on the second night of a back-to-back.
- After trailing by a single point, Kevin Durant's 18-foot bank shot, put the Thunder ahead 117-116 with 14 seconds left in regulation. The Warriors were held scoreless on their next possession and the Thunder solidified the win with a pair of Russell Westbrook free throws in the final seconds. Brandon Rush missed what would have been a game-tying 3-point field goal just before time expired in regulation.
- Kevin Durant (33 points; 13-27 FGs) and Russell Westbrook (31 points; 12-21 FGs) each scored 30-plus points in the same game for the 13th time in their careers (team recorded a 9-4 record in those games). The duo combined to score 21 fourth quarter points on 8-of-15 shooting.
- OKC won on the road for the first time this season when trailing after three quarters of play (0-3 previously).
- Oklahoma City prevailed despite a Warriors attack which included a career-high 48 points from Monta Ellis (30 of which were scored in the first half) and a triple-double from David Lee (25 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists).

OKLAHOMA CITY THUNDER NOTES

So Far, So Good: The Thunder will look to claim a seventh consecutive home victory tonight versus the Jazz after concluding the team's recent five-game road trip with a 3-2 mark. After a victory on Friday night over the Jazz in Utah, the Thunder enters this evening's contest at the Chesapeake Energy with the best record in the NBA (21-6). Through the first 27 games of the season, Oklahoma City is tied for its second best start in franchise history (the OKC franchise also opened the 2004-05 season 21-6). Only the 1993-94 team (24-3) posted a better record through the first 27 games of the season.

5,000 for Russell: Should Russell Westbrook score 11 points tonight versus the Jazz, he will reach the 5,000 points scored plateau in just his 274th game. If Westbrook crosses the 5,000 point threshold tonight, he will join Magic Johnson and Oscar Robertson as the only players in NBA history to record 5,000 points, 1,900 assists and 1,300 rebounds through 274 career games (Elias Sports Bureau). Additionally, Westbrook will become one of four players in franchise history to score 5,000 points in fewer than 300 games {Spencer Hayward (190 games), Kevin Durant (205 games), Bob Rule (228 games) and Xavier McDaniel (244 games)}.

Getting Defensive: Including the Thunder's recent outing against the Mavericks (2/1), Oklahoma City has held eight opponents to less than 40.0% shooting this year, while posting a 7-1 record in those games. Last season, the Thunder was only able to accomplish such a feat on six occasions (The Thunder went 6-0 in those contests). In 27 games this year the Thunder is limiting their opponent to 96.4 points on 42.8% shooting. Through the first 27 games of last season (in which OKC started 19-8), the Thunder surrendered 101.4 points on 46.2% shooting.

Just Another Back-2-Back: Tonight, Oklahoma City plays on the first night of the team's ninth back-to-back of the season. With 18 sets of back-to-backs scheduled (in addition to the Thunder's back-to-back-to-back) for the Thunder during the 2011-12 season, Oklahoma City has been successful to this point when playing on consecutive nights. So far this season, the Thunder has already registered sweeps in four sets of back-to-back match-ups to go along with a sweep of the team's lone back-to-back-to-back. So far this season, Oklahoma City is 6-2 on the first night and 7-2 on the second or third night of a back-to-back. Last season the Thunder played 17 sets of back-to-backs and the club posted a 13-4 record on the first night followed by a 10-7 mark on the second night. During the 2010-11 season, OKC captured sweeps in seven of their back-to-back pairings.

All-Star Bound: For a second consecutive season, Russell Westbrook and Kevin Durant will represent the Oklahoma City Thunder at the NBA All-Star game. Kevin Durant was named a starter on the 2012 Western Conference All-Star team after receiving 1,345,566 votes, second most in the Western Conference. This will mark Durant's third career All-Star appearance and his second as a starter. During last year's game played at STAPLES Center in Los Angeles, Durant was the game's second leading scorer after recording 34 points to go along with three rebounds and two assists in 30 minutes. Westbrook will make a second straight appearance on the Western Conference squad as a reserve after scoring 12 points to go along with five rebounds during last year's All-Star Game. The 2012 NBA All-Star Game, which will air live at 8 p.m. ET on TNT and ESPN Radio in the U.S., and reach fans in more than 200 countries and territories in more than 40 languages, will be played at Amway Center in Orlando – on Sunday, Feb. 26, 2012.

Coaching in Orlando: After defeating the Golden State Warriors this past Friday, the Thunder assured themselves of the best record in the NBA for those games played through February 15th. As a result, Scott Brooks and the Thunder coaching staff will lead the Western Conference All-Stars later in the month in Orlando. Brooks, the NBA's Western Conference Coach of the Month for December/January is just two wins shy of reaching his 150th career victory.

Double-Double Man: Including his career-long (tying) streak of five straight games with a double-double (1/27 at GS - 2/4 at SA), Kevin Durant has recorded a double-double in six of his last nine outings. Last season, Durant recorded 14 double-doubles including a stretch of five consecutive double-doubles from 1/30/11 vs. Miami – 2/8/11 vs. Memphis. During the 2011-12 season, Durant has increased his rebounding average by a full 1.4 rebounds per game (averaging a team-high 8.2 rebounds this season) and with 11 double-doubles entering tonight's game vs. Utah, he is only three double-doubles shy of reaching last year's total for the entire season.

Tracking the Perk Effect: Since Kendrick Perkins made his Oklahoma City debut last season on 3/14/11 at Washington, the Thunder has posted a 34-10 record. With Perkins in the lineup for the final 17 games of the 2010-11 regular season, the Thunder held its opponents to an average of 97.9 points on 43.8% shooting. Prior to Perkins joining the team mid-season, the Thunder had been allowing 101.8 points on 46.3% shooting.

Russell Rules: Including a career-long seven game streak (1/10 at MEM – 1/23 vs. DET), Russell Westbrook has scored 20-plus points in 15 of the Thunder's last 17 outings. Westbrook, who was recently named to his second consecutive Western Conference All-Star team, received NBA Player of the Week honors for a second time this season after leading the Thunder to a 3-1 mark for the week ending, February 12th (last season, Westbrook was named Player of the Week on five occasions). After starting the 2011-12 season scoring 17.3 points on 41.1% shooting through the first 10 games of the season, Westbrook has proceeded to average 26.2 points on 49.3% shooting in the last 17 games. During Westbrook's first three full seasons in the NBA, he became one of only five players in NBA history to record 4,000 points, 1,500 assists and 1,000 rebounds through three NBA seasons (Chris Paul, LeBron James, Anfernee Hardaway and Oscar Robertson). By averaging better than 21+ points and 8+ assists last season, Westbrook became just the FIFTH player in the last 15 years to average 21+ points and 8+ assists {Gary Payton (4x), Stephon Marbury (4x), Chris Paul (2x) and LeBron James). During the season, 61.0% of Westbrook's field goal attempts were taken from inside the paint (tops among all NBA guards; min. 500 FG attempts).

Block Party: On February 9th at Sacramento, Serge Ibaka blocked 10 shots for a second time this season which once again matched an all-time franchise record. Ibaka becomes just the second player over the last 14 years to record multiple 10+ block games in a single season (Marcus Camby blocked 10+ shots on two occasions during the 2007-08 season). Ibaka currently leads the NBA with 2.93 blocks per game and on the season, Oklahoma City is 11-1 when Ibaka blocks three or more shots. Through the Thunder's first 17 games this season both Serge Ibaka and Kendrick Perkins recorded a blocked shot in EVERY game (Oklahoma City was the only NBA team to feature two players with a block in every game through 17 games). Prior to the Thunder's game against Golden State (1/27), Ibaka had blocked a shot in 31 consecutive contests (longest such streak in the NBA at that time) dating back to last season. During the 2010-11 season, Ibaka strung together an impressive 26 game streak in which he recorded at least a single blocked shot. With a blocked shot in the first 17 games of this season Kendrick Perkins now owns a new career-best streak (previous career-high was 13 straight games with a block).

Road Warriors: Through the first two months of the 2011-12 season, the Thunder has once again found success playing on the road. In 17 games played away from the Chesapeake Energy Arena (Most road games played in the Western Conference), the Thunder has registered a conference-best 12-5 mark on the road. The Thunder is currently one of five Western Conference teams to boast a winning road record. To put a bit more perspective on the Thunder's road success, no team in the Southwest or Pacific divisions has claimed more than seven road victories. Last year, the Thunder recorded a mark of 25-16 on the road. Only four other teams tallied more road victories than the Thunder (CHI, MIA, DAL and LAL).

Bouncing Back: Dating back to the start of last season, Oklahoma City has demonstrated a high level of resiliency in those games played immediately after a loss. Including the Thunder's recent win over the Jazz in Utah (2/10), OKC improved to 5-1 this season in games played after a loss. This comes on the heels of the 2010-11 season in which Oklahoma City posted a record of 20-6 in games played immediately after a loss. The Thunder's .769 winning percentage in those games played after a defeat was trumped by only the Chicago Bulls last season (Chicago 16-4 following a loss).

Team USA: On January 16th Kevin Durant and Russell Westbrook were among the 20 finalists named for the 2012 U.S. Olympic men's basketball team. Durant was named World Championship MVP during the 2010 USA World Championships after helping lead team USA to a perfect 9-0 record and a gold medal in Istanbul, Turkey. His involvement in USA basketball began in 2006 when he was named a member of the U.S. team at the Nike Hoop Summit. Westbrook, was also a member of the 2010 USA World Championship team and his involvement with USA Basketball dates back to 2008 when he was named to the USA Basketball Select team. The official 12-man U.S. Olympic team roster will be announced later this year

Dynamic Duo: In the Thunder's recent outing against the Golden State Warriors (2/7), the Thunder prevailed after receiving 30-point scoring efforts from both Kevin Durant and Russell Westbrook. Last season, the Thunder went a perfect 5-0 when the pair each scored 30 or more points. During the Thunder's victory over the Warriors in Oakland late last month (1/27) both Russell Westbrook and Kevin Durant proceeded to score at least 25 points. It's the 36th time in their four seasons as teammates that each Durant and Westbrook scored at least 25 points in the same game. No other teammates in NBA history have even had 25 games of each scoring 25 points before turning 24 years old. By combining for 49.6 points per game last season, the Durant-Westbrook tandem finished second to only LeBron James and Dwayne Wade (combined for 52.2 ppg) of the Miami Heat in the race for the NBA's highest scoring duo. During the 2010-11 season, Russell Westbrook assisted on 279 of Durant's made field goals (tops in the NBA from one teammate to another). In fact, Westbrook assisted on 24.0% more assists to Durant than the next highest NBA duo (Chris Paul registered 212 assists to David West).

Awfully Good in OT: Earlier this month, the Thunder prevailed in their very first overtime game of the 2011-12 season after limiting Portland to 1-of-9 shooting (11.1%) in the overtime period. Last season, the Thunder became just the FIFTH team in NBA history to win eight overtime games in a single season (8-2). OKC set an all-time franchise record by winning five straight overtime games to start the season and the club's eight OT wins are the most in the NBA since 2002, when the Detroit Pistons went 8-0 in their overtime contests. During the 2010-11 season, OKC captured the franchises' first-ever triple-overtime victory (12/1/10) against New Jersey (OKC franchise was previously 0-4 all-time in triple overtime games).

Boards are the Barometer: As one might expect, Oklahoma City has traditionally found their greatest success when outrebounding the opposition. After outrebounding the Jazz 46-32 on Friday night, the Thunder improved to 11-1 this season when outrebounding the opposition (6-0 when outrebounding the opponent by 10 or more). Last season, OKC registered a 37-11 mark when outrebounding their opponent. During the 2009-10 season, the Thunder finished the regular season ranked 3rd in the NBA in rebounding. When digging deeper, the Thunder outrebounded their opponent in 55 of 82 games. In those contests, OKC posted a 40-15 record. Meanwhile, the Thunder went just 10-17 when they failed to rebound their opposition.

Harden Heats Up: James Harden has once again continued to impact games for the Thunder in a reserve capacity early in the 2011-12 season. Harden has come off the bench in 25 of 27 games this season for Oklahoma City and in all but two instances he has proceeded to score in double figures (including seven 20-point efforts in which the team is 6-1). Harden's 16.6 point per game average is currently tops in the NBA among reserves (min. 18 games). Including his career-best 18 game streak (2/15-3/25) James Harden came off the Thunder bench to score in double figures in 27 of the final 29 games of the 2010-11 regular season. After the All-Star break, Harden averaged 15.8 points per game while shooting 46.5% from the field. From February 22nd to the end of the 2010-11 season, Harden led the NBA in bench scoring (15.8 ppg).

Making them Look Free: On the heels of their best free throw shooting performance of the season at Golden State just a few nights ago (20-21 FTs), the Thunder now leads the NBA in free throw shooting accuracy (79.7). Last season, OKC shot a league-best 82.3% from the free throw line (5th highest percentage in NBA history). As a point of reference, the best all-time free throw shooting percentage for an entire season in NBA history is 83.2% (Boston Celtics; 1989-90). Additionally, OKC led the NBA in free throw makes (24.1) and ranked second in free throw attempts (29.3) per game. On the year, OKC converted 30+ FTs on eighteen occasions (16-2 record) after doing so six times during all of the 2009-10 season (4-2 record). During the 2009-10 season Durant recorded 756 free throw makes, an all-time OKC Thunder franchise record and the 6th most in NBA history for a single season. Durant's 756 free throws made were the most for a single-season since Michael Jordan recorded 833 free throw makes during the 1986-87 season. KD is the ONLY player in NBA history to convert 700+ free throws while shooting 90.0% or better.

Feasting on the East: Picking up right where they left-off last season, the Thunder has once again found a high-level of success when taking-on Eastern Conference opponents. Oklahoma City improved to 5-1 against teams from "The East" after defeating the Detroit Pistons by 20 points on January 23rd. Last season, the Thunder found a high degree of success when facing opponents from the "East." Oklahoma City concluded the season with a record of 22-8 when facing Eastern Conference foes. The Thunder's .733 winning percentage vs. the Eastern Conference ranked tied with Dallas for second best (San Antonio; 23-7) among all Western Conference teams. After defeating the Bobcats by 17 points on 2/18/11, OKC completed "sweeps" against eight Eastern Conference teams last season (CHA, WAS, DET, PHI, IND, NJ, ATL and CLE).

Game Winner for KD: During the Thunder's game on December 29th versus Dallas, Kevin Durant kept Oklahoma City a perfect 4-0 with his game-winning 3-point field goal at the buzzer. Durant's game-winner against the Mavs represented Durant's third such game-winning field goal of his career (Durant's other buzzer-beater shots occurred on 11/16/07 against Atlanta and 1/22/2011 versus New York).

OKC is Fan Friendly: The Thunder opened the 2011-12 season right where they left off a year ago...with another sellout. So far this season the Thunder has recorded sellouts in all ten of their home games. This occurs on the heels of the 2010-11 season in which the Thunder sold out 14 consecutive games to close the regular season and 35 games overall. Those in attendance this year will once again enjoy the improvements made to the Chesapeake Energy Arena as part of a taxpayer funded initiative passed in March 2008. Thanks to the publically funded initiative, the team's arena boasts a state-of-the art scoreboard, new terrace suites, an updated main concourse with new concession stands to go with a high-end courtside club.

30 Never Looked so Good: Picking up right where he left off last season, Kevin Durant hit the 30-point scoring mark in each of the Thunder's first four games this season. Durant is one of only four players in the last 30 years to open the season with four straight 30-point scoring efforts (Most recent: Kobe Bryant in 2005-06). In the last four seasons, Durant has scored 30+ points in 105 games (most in the NBA). Most importantly for Oklahoma City, the Thunder has found a great deal of success on Durant's biggest nights. Dating back to the start of the 2010-11 season the Thunder has posted a 32-7 record when Durant hits the 30-point plateau. During the 2009-10 season, Durant set a franchise record by scoring 30+ points on 47 occasions.

Sweep Success: After defeating the San Antonio Spurs earlier this season (1/8), the Thunder claimed a "sweep" in the team's lone back-to-back-to-back of the season. Oklahoma City defeated the Houston Rockets on consecutive nights before knocking-off the Spurs to become the first team to sweep a back-to-back-to-back in the NBA this season (OKC was the sixth team to play three games in three nights this season). During the 1998-99 season there were 64 back-to-back-to-backs played and of those, there were only eight sweeps.

Five-In-Seven: After defeating the Phoenix Suns at the end of 2011 (12/31), Oklahoma City claimed their fifth victory of the season in the first seven days of the 2011-12 season. The Thunder became just the second team in NBA history to capture five wins in the first seven days of the season (Houston Rockets accomplished the feat to start the 1996-97 season). The 5-0 start for the Thunder this year was the best start for the OKC franchise since the 1998-99 season.

Happy New Year: The Thunder closed-out 2011 with a 10-point victory over the Phoenix Suns in front of their home crowd at the Chesapeake Energy Arena. In each of the last four seasons, Oklahoma City has played a home affair on New Year's Eve and in each instance, the Thunder has prevailed (OKC defeated Phoenix, Atlanta, Utah and Golden State in each of the last four seasons on New Year's Eve).

A Merry Christmas for OKC Indeed: In the season opener for the Thunder, Oklahoma City provided its fans with a gift in the form of a 97-89 victory over the Orlando Magic on Christmas Night. The Thunder secured a Christmas win for a second consecutive season thanks in large part to a defensive effort that limited Orlando to 37.0% shooting {OKC limited ORL to 30.5% shooting (22-72 FGs) after the Magic made eight of their first nine field goals to start the game}. OKC held the Magic to sub 40.0% shooting on the night – a feat they only achieved six times during the 2010-11 season (OKC was a perfect 6-0 in those game last season and is currently 2-0 this season). The OKC franchise now maintains a two-game Christmas win streak after going winless in their first 11 Christmas appearances.

Western Conference Finals: Last season, the Oklahoma City Thunder appeared in the Western Conference Finals just two years after finishing the 2008-09 season with a record of 23-59 (started season 3-29). Since the NBA went to a conference format in 1970-71, only one other team has reached the conference finals within two years after winning 23 or fewer games {San Antonio; 1998-99 season (won 20 games in 1996-97)}. The Thunder concluded the 2009-10 season by compiling 50 wins after posting just 23 victories during the team's inaugural season in Oklahoma City. The 27 win improvement was tied for the EIGHTH largest increase in NBA history.

Northwest Division Champions: After knocking-off the Los Angeles Clippers on April 6th of last season, the Thunder became the 2010-11 Northwest Division Champions. Oklahoma City concluded the 2010-11 regular season by winning sixteen of their final twenty games of the year. Dating back to March 9th, only the Chicago Bulls (18-2) and Miami (15-3) posted a better record than the Thunder. During the five-week long run, Oklahoma City averaged 105.3 points on 47.4% shooting while limiting the opposition to an average of 97.0 points on 43.4% field goal shooting.

National Spotlight: Oklahoma City is currently slated to appear on ESPN, ABC or TNT 17 times throughout the course of the 2011-12 season. Additionally, the Thunder is set to be featured on NBATV eight times this upcoming season (excluding Fan Night). When the dust settled on the NBA's 2011-12 broadcasting schedule, the Thunder was set to make the 6th most national TV dates this year. OKC is currently 10-2 on national television this year (OKC started the 2010-11 season by going a perfect 7-0 on national TV). Including the Thunder's 99-90 victory over Portland Trail Blazers on 3/27/11, the Thunder posted a 9-6 record during their 15 nationally television appearances last season.

Back-to-Back Scoring Champ: With his 27.7 point per game scoring clip last season Kevin Durant became just the 11th player in NBA history to win back-to-back scoring titles. Durant is the most recent player to accomplish the feat since Kobe Bryant won consecutive scoring titles in 2005-06 and 2006-07. By capturing back-to-back scoring crowns, Durant has joined a hall-of-fame list of current and former NBA players who have won consecutive scoring titles (Kobe Bryant, Tracy McGrady, Allen Iverson, Michael Jordan, George Gervin, Bob McAdoo, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Wilt Chamberlain, Neil Johnston and George Mikan). Should Durant capture a scoring title this season, he would become the first player to claim three straight scoring crowns since Michael Jordan (1995-1998). During the 2009-10 season, Durant became the youngest scoring champion in NBA history (21 years and 197 days).

Inserting Ibaka: When the dust settled on the 2010-11 season, Serge Ibaka registered the most blocks in the NBA (198). Ibaka's 2.4 blocks per game average ranked 3rd in the league and earlier in the 2010-11 season, he posted a blocked shot in 26 consecutive games (longest streak at that time in NBA). On the season, Ibaka blocked four or more shots on 18 occasions and the Thunder posted a 16-2 record in those games. Dating back to the start of last season, Ibaka has started 70 games for the Thunder and the team has posted a 53-18 record in those contests.
